Odd Year Vacancies Draw Numerous Candidates

An unusually large number of county vacancies have resulted in more races than is normal in an uneven year election. Normally the charter counties of King, Snohomish and Whatcom would have been the only ones with scheduled elections. However, this year there are fifteen other counties that have vacancies in various offices triggering an election with 35 positions. There are fourteen council positions up for election, five auditors, four sheriffs, three assessors, three treasurers, two prosecuting attorneys, one commissioner, one clerk, one coroner and one executive.

The following persons have filed for county positions. For partisan positions there will be no primary if only one candidate from each major political party files for office per 29.15.150 RCW. For non-partisan offices, there will be no primary for positions where two or fewer candidates have filed per 29.21.015 RCW.

Fiscal Impact Estimates for Fall Initiatives Available

On August 1, the Office of Financial Management (OFM) released estimates of the fiscal impacts of I-747 (Property Taxes) and I-775 (Long Term Care). The estimates for I-747 include estimates by county for types of district for six years from 2002 to 2007. Estimates are also available for individual cities in each county. Because I-747 limits all regular levies, counties, cities, ports, fire districts, libraries, hospital districts and other local districts will see changes in tax capacity under the initiative.

While many counties have limited their levy growth to two percent or less in recent years, the I-747 one percent limit would result in additional reductions in revenue growth. The estimate shows the compounding feature of the proposed limit. Losses to current expense funds would start at $9.8 million in 2002 and grow to $50.2 million per year in 2007.

Junior districts that are heavily dependent on property taxes would see similar patterns. Fire districts revenue reductions would grow from $7.4 million in 2002 to $50.7 million per year in 2007. Emergency Medical Service levies yields would decrease by $2.1 million in 2002 and by $15.5 million per year by $2007.

Early polling continues to show a generally positive attitude toward I-747, so counties should take this into account in their budget planning. In the past, we have found many of the junior districts have been unprepared to deal with the passage of initiatives. Many of these districts are critical partners with counties in delivering public safety and health services. Because I-747 does not suffer from the drafting flaws of some prior initiatives, it is important that all local taxing districts take the budget consequences of this measure seriously.

WSAC Steering Committee Announced
Legislative Steering Committee Membership Completed; Schedule Set

The WSAC Legislative Steering Committee for 2001-02 has been named by WSAC President Mike Shelton and we will begin developing the Legislative Agenda for the 2002 session at a meeting September 7 at the Summit Inn, Snoqualmie Pass. Co-chairs for the 2001-02 Committee are Commissioner Chris Endresen of Kitsap County and Commissioner Mary Hunt of Douglas County.

A second meeting of the Legislative Steering Committee will take place on October 26 in Yakima and a third in Silverdale on November 14, the day before the Legislative Conference.

The Legislative Conference convenes at 8:00 a.m., November 15, with adoption of the 2002 Legislative Agenda the following morning.

Joining the Legislative Steering Committee for the first time are Skagit County Commissioner Don Munks, Whitman County Commissioner Greg Partch, both members of the Class of 2001. The full membership of the Committee is published elsewhere in this issue.

State Revenue Collections Lag

The State Economic and Revenue Forecast Council’s report on actual revenue collections showed a shortfall of $23.6 million compared to forecast for the month ending July 11, 2001. The shortfall was spread across all tax sources except liquor. A softening of high end real estate prices and sales in King County resulted in a real decline in state and local Real Estate Excise Tax receipts. If the overall pattern continues, the state will face a tough supplemental budget process next year. The next state forecast update is scheduled for September. Detailed information is available at the Forecast Council web site: www.ofc.wa.gov

Washington is not alone in its budget woes. The National Conference of State Legislatures has just released a report outlining the fiscal “state of the states”. A number of states failed to adopt a budget on time. Many raised taxes, cut budgets or both. Legislative gridlock was widespread and a number of governors wielded aggressive veto pens. States reduced their total reserves by 22% from $43.7 billion to $34.1 billion. On average, states’ revenues grew by 4.5% while their expenditures grew by 9.1%. States’ expenditure growth was driven by rising Medicaid costs. (Medicaid is a joint state and federal program to provide health care for low-income seniors, disabled and families.) Despite the strain on many budgets, states continued to enact tax cuts. The total tax changes nationwide net to a cut of $3.3 billion. The report, with an executive summary is available at: www.ncsl.org

Environment, Land Use & Resources
Shorelines Funding - What Next?

All 39 counties and 205 cities are mandated to update local Shoreline Master Programs by December 2002. Efforts to secure funding support to meet this mandate and stagger implementation timelines beyond 2002 failed during the regular and special legislative sessions. Thirty-three counties and over 150 individual cities have officially submitted claim forms to the state requesting funding for this mandated work. These claims forms lie unfunded within the offices of the House Appropriations and Senate Ways and Means Committees.

Most of those counties have already challenged the shorelines guidelines – and the lack of funding for them – in a lawsuit pending at the Pollution Control Hearings Board. Many cities are considering whether to bring legal action challenging the state to provide funds for this unfunded mandate. If any counties are interested in joining with cities to bring a suit, please contact Paul Parker at WSAC.

Senator Tim Sheldon Asks for Attorney General Opinion on Scope of Rural Counties Sales Tax Credit

Senator Tim Sheldon (D-Mason County) has asked the Washington Attorney General for a formal published opinions on the scope of the rural county sales tax credit for economic development, RCW 82.14.370. In summary, the opinion asks:

1. May a county use revenues derived from the local option sales and use tax program for rural counties, authorized under RCW 82.14.370, to finance any or all of the following costs related to public facilities: (1) Capital facilities costs, including acquisition, construction, rehabilitation, alteration, expansion, or improvements of public facilities; (2) costs of development and improvements for the public facilities; (3) project-specific environmental costs; (4) land use and permitting costs; (5) costs of site planning and analysis; and (6) project design, including feasibility and marketing studies and plans, and debt and revenue impact analysis?

2. Does the requirement in RCW 82.14.370(3) that a public facility must be listed as an item in an officially adopted county overall economic development plan, or the economic development section of a county's comprehensive plan, or the comprehensive plan of a city or town located within the county

Boards & Commissions

Recruiting ‘Alternates’ for State E-911 Committee

WSAC has recently learned that the state Enhanced 911 Advisory Committee’s bylaws provide for “alternates” to attend and vote on committee business when a Committee member is unable to attend.

To ensure county representation at all Committee meetings, WSAC would like to formally appoint alternates for the two WSAC positions on the E-911 Committee. One alternate must be an Eastern Washington commissioner; one must be a Western Washington commissioner. These back-up appointments will be made directly by the WSAC Board of Directors or Executive Committee. If interested, please contact WSAC staff Sophia Byrd at sbyrd@wacounties.org or 360-753-1886, by August 30, 2001.

The alternates will receive all meeting information and will be asked to attend when the primary members are unable to. The E-911 Committee meets monthly at SeaTac. WSAC’s primary representatives on the Committee are Lincoln County Commissioner Bill Graedel representing Eastern counties and Pacific County Commissioner Jon Kaino representing Western counties.

County Position Open on Emergency Management Council

The recent resignation of Mason County Commissioner Mary Jo Cady leaves open a county position on the state Emergency Management Council, which advises the governor on state and local emergency management issues. The governor will appoint a new county representative from nominees submitted by the Washington State Association of Counties.

County officials interested in filling this position should contact Sophia Byrd of the WSAC staff (sbyrd@wacounties.org; 360-753-1886) by August 15, 2001. The WSAC Board of Directors will select two or three nominees and will forward these applicants to the governor’s office for his final appointment.

Pursuant to RCW 38.52.040, the Emergency Management Council develops specific recommendations for the improvement of emergency management practices statewide. It also advises the governor on statewide emergency preparedness relating to various issues, including hazard mitigation, seismic safety, floods, and hazardous materials.

The Council meets every other month, usually at Camp Murray near Tacoma. The term of service on the council is indefinite. Commissioner Cady reports that regular attendance is important due to counties’ integral role in almost all matters relating to emergency management.

Meetings & Conferences

WSAC, AWC Sponsor Energy Conference on August 8th & 9th

WSAC, the Association of Washington Cities and the Northwest Energy Efficiency Alliance are co-sponsoring “Taking Back Our Energy Future” on August 8th and 9th in Yakima. The Conference will focus on managing through the evolving energy situation as an energy consumer and an energy provider. (Many cities provide energy, but no county does.) It is an excellent training opportunity for building operators and employees with responsibility for energy efficiency.

The keynote speaker is the provocative Cyrus Noe, editor of the Clearing-gUp newsletter. Plenary sessions address the topics:

- Drought, Water, Fish and Energy
- Energy Prices
- Energy Codes
- Winter Blackouts

Breakout sessions include the topics of energy conservation methods, budgeting during energy cost uncertainty, and water and wastewater system impacts.

Registration for the Conference is $95. Brochures including the registration form have been sent to many county offices, but if you didn’t get one or can’t find it, you can access a registration form on the webpage for the Association of Washington Cities: www.awcnet.org. Click on “Training”, then “August”, then “Registration Form”.

(Continued from page 3) for those counties planning under the Growth Management Act (GMA) mean that the public facility must have an economic development purpose such as permanent private sector job creation or retention (beyond the jobs created directly in constructing a project)?

3. Is the answer to question 2 the same for those counties that do not have an adopted overall economic development plan and do not plan under the GMA, where RCW 82.14.370(3) requires that the public facilities must be listed in the county’s capital facilities plan or the capital facilities plan of a city or town located within the county?

4. If the answer to question 3 is yes, what is the standard, if any, by which a county must determine whether a public facility has an economic development purpose?

Any county interested in commenting on the request should notify the Attorney General’s Office of that interest by August 8, 2001. This is not the due date by which comments must be received. However, if you do not notify the Attorney General’s Office of your interest in commenting on an opinion request by August 8, 2001, the opinion may be issued before your comments have been received. You may notify the Attorney General’s Office of your intention to comment by calling (360) 586-4218, or by writing to the Solicitor General, Office of the Attorney General, P. O. Box 40100, Olympia, WA 98504-0100.

When you notify the office of your intention to comment, you will be provided with a copy of the opinion request in which you are interested; information about the Attorney General’s Opinion process; information on how to submit your comments; and a due date by which your comments must be received to ensure that they are fully considered.
News in Brief

JESERNIG LEAVING DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Department of Agriculture Director Jim Jesernig this week announced plans to leave the agency late this fall, departing a cabinet post he has held since 1993. Jesernig was first appointed to head the Department of Agriculture by former Gov. Mike Lowry and was re-appointed by Gov. Gary Locke. Jesernig will be joining the Perkins Cole law firm in Olympia, working on public policy issues. Perkins Cole, headquartered in Seattle, is the Northwest's largest law firm with more than 500 lawyers serving clients from offices throughout the United States and Asia.

Prior to joining the state Department of Agriculture, Jesernig, a native of Kennewick, served the southeast Washington farming communities of the 8th Legislative District for seven years as state senator and representative. He was Senate majority floor leader in 1993.

SKAMANIA COUNTY GETS NEW CRIMINAL JUSTICE FACILITY
Skamania County dedicated a new Criminal Justice Facility on June 22. The facility, adjacent to the existing courthouse complex, added 50 jail beds and approximately 20,000 square feet of space and cost $5.5 million. Construction took just under one year and includes a remodel of the existing Sheriff's Office, conversion of the old jail to a 12-bed work release facility, and incorporates all the main Sheriff’s Office administrative operations into one facility. Hoffman Construction Company of Portland Oregon provided Construction Management Services for the project.

WACO Conference Registration Out Soon

WACO members will be receiving Annual Conference Registrations by mail within the next two weeks. This year’s conference will be held at the Port Ludlow Resort, in Port Ludlow, October 2-5. Below is a synopsis of the conference and some advice on booking rooms (condos) at the Resort.

This year, Tuesday, October 2, will be devoted to training sessions, running one after the other all day, in an effort to increase chances for county officials to earn credit in the new Certified Public Official (CPO) program that is in development, taking the place of the County Officials Training and Certification Course (COTCC). The first session, from 9:00-12:00 will be a workshop on the Family and Medical Leave Act and Workplace Harassment, presented by Gil Sparks an attorney from Wenatchee. The afternoon sessions will be one hour each, running consecutively, and will be presented by the Washington Association of Prosecuting Attorneys (WAPA). Topics will be Labor Law 101 (1:30-2:30), Contracts 101 (2:30-3:30), and Public Disclosure/Public Records 101 (3:30-4:30).

The opening general session Wednesday, October 3, will include a keynote address by Dr. Stephen Douglas, a psychologist from Ohio, who has consistently received high reviews for his presentations across the country, and a panel of professionals who will discuss the initiative process in this state from various viewpoints.

Wednesday afternoon and Thursday will be devoted to affiliate meetings and training, and the Thursday evening banquet will be a tribute to retiring WACO Executive Director Fred Saeger. The Friday business meeting will include adoption of the 2002 Legislative package.

Room rates at the Resort are $95.00 for a single room. Because the units are all condominium suites, there are a variety of room setups and choices to make before making a reservation. Each “suite” can be broken up into three or four bedrooms, with individual baths. Two of the rooms have outside entries. We would suggest, however, that you get together with other county officials and share the suites rather than the individual rooms and you will get a fully furnished living and dining area, kitchen, fireplace and deck or patio. This will cost only $50 per night in addition to the room rate, but that would be split by everyone. In addition, some of the rooms in the suites have two queen size beds, if you want to double up and save money that way.

This could be a lot of fun if people will share the suites!

Look for registrations soon, which will outline all of the meetings, social events and activities!

Good Things

Diversion Program for Bad Check Writers

Mason County has joined Thurston County as the second jurisdiction in the state to implement a check enforcement program. The program involves low-level bad checks and the effort to cut down on law enforcement involvement and expense. Mason County Prosecutor Gary Burleson entered into a contract with a company that locates the offenders for merchants and arranges for full restitution. The second part of the program is a three-hour educational component so that the number of repeat offenders is reduced. Those who write the bad checks pay the entire cost of the program by paying a fee on top of the restitution and bank charges. If the offender goes through the program, he or she does not have to appear before a judge. The program has worked well in Thurston County by keeping law enforcement focused on more serious issues and is saving money by cutting down on prosecutions.

Skagit County Assessor’s Office Rises to Challenge

(Reprinted with permission-by Shawn Kyes, Property Tax Specialist, Department of Revenue)

Skagit County Assessor’s Office: In 1994, Mark Leander was elected Skagit County Assessor. At the time, the office was facing a number of challenges. A drastic increase in population and concerns about the Growth Management Act had caused a significant increase in required parcel administration (segregation work). The number of parcels with new construction had nearly doubled in five years, which added to the workload. Only adding to the problems was an ever-increasing number of appeals. Requests for additional resources to meet the increasing workloads were not funded and Skagit County was consistently running five to six months late in the assessment cycle.

Mr. Leander and his chief deputy, Wes Hagen, began to look for answers. They started by making some organizational and operational changes. One change was to remove the residential appraisers from the appeal process. This was accomplished by designating a review appraiser to handle all residential appeals. By using a review appraiser, the preparation time for appeals was reduced by 50%. In large part this was because the reviewer became more proficient in presentations, and also because an objective review permitted appropriate adjustments when necessary. The residential appraisers now have an additional 6 weeks available to devote to the reval and or new construction, without having to look over their shoulder and wonder about the appeals.

Although many of the changes implemented were helping, the county still found itself late in the assessment cycle. In 1996, with the cooperation of the assessor and staff, DOR conducted a limited review of the assessor’s office. The review included a look at past, present, and projected workloads and staffing levels. Additionally, the review looked at how parcel data accuracy was ensured, sales verification and analysis, and the CAMA system employed by the county. The DOR review supported many of the initial recommendations held by Mark and Wes. One of the recommendations made was that three additional employees be added to assist in property segregations, sales analysis and verification, and appraisal support. Although funding for all of these positions was not immediate, by working with the Board of County Commissioners, funding for three positions was added in 1999.

The story doesn’t end there…as well as it shouldn’t. With input and support from staff, Skagit County has and is continuing to review functions of the office and processes employed. To produce accurate and timely assessments, data for key parcel characteristics are continually tested for validity. By use of a Windows 2000 based network tied to a Unix server, on which the Assessor data resides, macros have been developed in Microsoft Word and Excel templates. This allows many of the forms and records that are administered to be automated and self-propagating. The extensive use of digital photographs have more than met their initial cost and serve as an excellent illustrative tool that is available during BOE hearings. Although it was originally intended as a cost saving measure, digital photography has enhanced the efficiency of the appraisers, as there are no longer delays in film development and the filing of photographs. All images are available immediately at each workstation without having to track down individual folio books. By using GIS data and products available through the Skagit County GIS Department, appraisal progress by individual vidual appraisers is easily tracked by color-coded maps.

Through process automation and relevant training, appraisals per week have increased in excess of 50%. Last year, the county was able to close rolls and certify all new construction four months earlier than in previous years. The assessor is also in the process of moving to a four-year inspection cycle and continue to complete annual re-

Three Initiatives to the People Head to Fall Ballot

The Office of the Secretary of State has certified three Initiatives to the People to this fall’s ballot. In order to validate, initiative sponsors must submit enough valid signatures equaling 8% of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial race. Based on the 2000 general election gubernatorial race, that number works out to be 197,734 valid signatures. All three initiative sponsors submitted far more signatures than the required 197,734 as the invalidation rate on signatures runs approximately 15%.

The Initiatives to the People that will appear on the fall ballot are: I–747 which limits property tax increases to 1%; I–773 would impose additional taxes on tobacco products to fund a variety of different programs including help to low income citizens; I–775 would create a homecare quality authority to regulate publicly funded in-home care services for the elderly and disabled.

Initiatives need a majority of favorable votes to pass and become law. If the effective date is not noted in the text of the initiative, the effective date is on the thirtieth day following the election. In 2001, the effective date would be December 6.

Apply Now for COTCC Certification!

With a new and different Certified Public Official (CPO) program on the horizon, it is important that county officials apply now if they are eligible for certification under WACO’s County Officials’ Certification and Training Course (COTCC) through the University of Washington.

Applications for certification were mailed this week to approximately seventy county officials who completed the five-day course at the University of Washington (UW) that WACO has offered in past years. A combination of attendance (50 points) and an award of 50 points for experience and government service will qualify them for UW certification from the Daniel J. Evans Graduate School of Public Affairs. Over 200 WACO and WSAC members have received the certification since the program began in the mid-1980s.

It is important that eligible offi-

counts to the University are changes. WACO is in the process of developing a Certified Public Official (CPO) Program in partnership with the Washington State Association of Counties (WSAC), the Washington Counties Risk Pool (WCRP), the County Road Administration Board (CRAB) and Washington State University (WSU). The CPO Program is an opportunity to offer expanded training and make it more accessible by sharing of resources among the partners.

Completed COTCC applications must be received at WACO by August 27. The WACO Education and Certification Committee will then evaluate the applications and submit the names of qualified individuals to the University for certification. The certificates will be presented at WACO’s 43rd Annual Conference at Port Ludlow in October. Please call WACO if you have any questions.

WACO/WSAC Scholarship Fund

So What is the Washington Counties Scholarship Fund?

In last week’s Courthouse Journal we provided a brief description of the Washington Scholarship Fund and discussed how WSAC is raising funds this year at our Fall Legislative Conference. Here is some history of the Washington Counties Scholarship Fund:

What is the Washington Counties Scholarship Fund?

The Washington Counties Scholarship Fund is a joint endeavor of the Washington State Association of Counties (WSAC) and the Washington Association of County Officials (WACO) to provide scholarship funds to children of county employees. The Scholarship Fund was officially established in 1993 but informal donations and awards were made as early as 1988. Since 1993, there have been 36 awards granted totaling $59,000.

How do we raise the funds?

WSAC and WACO alternate fund-raising events for this benefit. WSAC holds an auction each odd year held during their Fall Legislative Conference. WACO holds the “affiliate challenge” each even year at their annual conference in October. In addition to participating in the “affiliate challenge” the County Coroners and Medical Examiners raise money by selling fine wares. Both events have been very successful by raising thousands of dollars each year.

How many applicants do we get each year?

County employees can be proud of their children! Each year we receive over 200 qualified applications that demonstrate superior scholastic achievement, outstanding leadership qualities, and the dedication to their family, friends, and com-

Rocky Reach Dam Tour & Dinner
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27. The Douglas County Commissioners have planned a fabulous afternoon and evening for us, starting with a tour of the dam facilities led by the Chelan PUD and concluding with a mouthwatering home-style feast of Baked Ham, Baked Chicken and all the trimmings at the Rocky Reach Visitor Center! The Douglas County PUD will provide a short presentation during the banquet.

The Rocky Reach Visitor Center, located on the Chelan County side of the Rocky Reach Hydro Project, is a beautiful facility boasting panoramic views of the project. The powerhouse holds two interpretive historical museums: Museum of Electricity and Museum of the Columbia - and balconies provide views of the full length of the powerhouse, the spillway, fish ladder and Columbia River. Adjacent to the visitor center and powerhouse are 30 acres of award-winning lawns and gardens.

This promises to be a great event! Don’t forget, guests are always welcome and extra meal tickets may be purchased with your registration.
