Sheriffs Meet in Wenatchee

President Mike Kline, Adams County Sheriff, presided over the business meeting of the Washington State Association of County Sheriffs this week in Wenatchee. The meeting was held in conjunction with the 2002 Spring Conference of the Washington Association of Sheriffs and Police Chiefs (WASPC).

Washington State Patrol (WSP) Chief Ronal Serpas outlined the merits of the new all-felon DNA databank in the WSP Crime Laboratory and the phenomenal successes other states have had in solving cases as a result of the expanded databases. He also discussed the positive impact that increased traffic law enforcement will have on the Public Safety and Education Account. The agenda for the meeting also included reports on the 2002 Legislative Session, the Criminal Justice Training Commission, and the Department of Corrections.

The group recognized Sheriff Kline and Whatcom County Sheriff Dale Brandland, WASPC President, for their tireless contributions to the sheriffs and law enforcement in the state and for their outstanding leadership.

Sheriff Kline passed the gavel to King County Sheriff Dave Reichert after the following were elected to lead the Sheriffs’ Association for the next two years: Sheriff Dave Reichert, President; Clallam County Sheriff Joe Hawe, Vice President; and Stevens County Sheriff Craig Thayer, Secretary-Treasurer. Snohomish County Sheriff Rick Bart was reelected to a two-year term as the Sheriffs’ Representative to the Board of the Washington Association of County Officials.

As the first order of business under the new regime, the sheriffs voted to sponsor a “Cultural Cooperation Conference” in the late fall of this year. The focus of the conference will be community relations among law enforcement and the diverse groups of citizens it serves.

WACO and WSAC Officers Meet

WACO President Barbara Cory, Whatcom County Treasurer, and WSAC President LeRoy Allison, Grant County Commissioner, co-chaired a meeting of the officers of WSAC and WACO last week in Ellensburg.

High on the agenda was a discussion of the first joint conference of the two organizations that will be held in Wenatchee the first week of October. The officers hope, through the efforts of the WSAC Legislative Steering Committee and WACO Legislative Process, to develop a joint legislative agenda and focus the joint activities of the conference on that theme. The initial step was a report of WSAC’s Eastern and Western District Meetings and the WACO Board, where both organizations developed preliminary direction. This was the first in what will be a series of discussions.

and for replacement of the network server. Working as the Scholarship Fund Board, the officers approved the maximum initial purchase of 500 units of the Guaranteed Education Tuition (GET) program offered by Washington State. GET is sold in units (100 units equal one full academic year’s tuition at Washington’s highest-priced public university). The future payout rate for each unit purchased is based on 1% of the tuition in the year it is paid out.

WSAC President Allison urges all members to attend summer convention

As we begin the process of adopting a legislative position to address the county financial crisis, I want to urge all members to attend this year’s summer convention. During the business meeting you will have the opportunity to debate a resolution presented by the eastern Washington District calling upon all counties to submit the burden of responsibilities to the state on a weekly basis. Whether this is the appropriate response to the county funding crisis or not it is the beginning of a process of trying to find a strategy for helping counties during the next session of the legislature.

Both the western and eastern districts have discussed how each county is dealing with budget shortfalls and how they plan on making changes in the current calendar year as well as next year. In addition, at the direction of the Board of Directors a survey has been mailed to all counties asking what services, the source of funding for those services and what interlocal co-operation each counties provides. This tool will help develop a strategy of potential service cuts or funding changes counties could employ in their budget deliberations.

The officers of WACO and WSAC also met last week to discuss a strategy of cooperation between the two associations as well as the Association of Washington Cities. This will culminate in adoption of a joint legislative package at the Joint Fall Conference in Wenatchee.

As part of the strategy the new Legislative Steering Committee will be meeting for the first time at the convention and will begin the process of working toward a legislative package. We will be developing a process to involve both WACO and AWC so all counties and cities can support a unified local government position.

So you can see the Summer Convention in Bellevue is very important for you to attend. The Association is no stronger than its members and this year that will be more important than ever. I hope to see all of you there. WSAC President LeRoy Allison, Grant County Commissioner.

Puget Sound Water Quality Action Team is Seeking Candidates
The Puget Sound Water Quality Action Team is currently seeking candidates for the county representative position. The Action Team is a 17-member body composed of the heads of 10 state administrative agencies; a chair and three members appointed by the governor to represent cities, counties, and tribes; and three non-voting federal members representing the Environmental Protection Agency, National Marine Fisheries Service, and the Department of Fish and Wildlife. The Action Team normally meets twice each year. The recent retirement of King County Council member Louise Miller made vacant the county representative position on the Action Team. Traditionally, the appointee to this position has been an elected county commissioner or councilmember who serves one of the 12 Puget Sound county governments and actively communicates with peers throughout the region.

Counties Respond to Possible Loss of PILT Funding
The Department of Interior (DOI) testified against continued Payments In Lieu of Taxes (PILT) funding in a recent hearing on S. 454, the PILT and Refuge Revenue Sharing Permanent Funding Act. The message of the testimony was that DOI wants to reduce PILT appropriation by 21 percent, that PILT is over funded, and that public lands counties are getting more than they deserve in other revenue sharing programs. A DOI representative testified that “…the Federal government covers many of the costs that the counties would otherwise incur if the land were not in Federal ownership.” Washington counties responded to the negative testimony by sending letters to Secretary of the Interior Gale A. Norton. A copy of the letter submitted by WSAC is attached to this edition of the Journal.

Department of Revenue Re-examines Manufacturing Exemptions
In response to recommendations from his Competitiveness Council, the governor asked the state Department of Revenue to review the sales and use tax exemptions for manufacturing. The business community wants the definitions expanded to include more expenditures for building, equipment, and electricity. Some businesses have argued that the department is misinterpreting the law. Since the passage of the tax exemption, the definitions have been steadily expanded. Some communities with heavy concentrations of “manufacturing” have suffered significant sales tax losses. Some communities have been surprised to learn that businesses they did not think were manufacturers, in fact met the requirements of the law. The positive side of the exemptions were that they helped recruit and retain some businesses. The Department of Revenue will continue working on this issue in the coming months.

Good Thing
Walla Walla County Sheriff Mike Humphreys sent two of his deputies for training recently to learn how to use an electronic tracking device that helps to find people with dementia when they wander away. The Care Trak system is a wristband that cannot be removed by the individual who is wearing it; it emits signals that can be picked up by a tracking device kept by law enforcement. The tracking device itself is about the size of a lunchbox and can easily be carried by authorities searching for someone who is lost. The range of the device is one mile on the ground and four miles by air. The wristbands are $350 each and the tracking unit is $2,200. Three counties in Washington currently have the CareTrak system: Snohomish, Spokane, and Walla Walla. The wristbands can also be used with disabled children. In the Walla Walla area families can get help paying for them through a scholarship program; donations are being taken through the Baker Boyer Bank in Walla Walla to help fund the entire program.
