2003 Legislation of Interest to Assessors

There are already numerous bills involving property tax and assessors. Senior citizens’ tax relief is the topic of HB 1029, HB 1044, HB 1071, SB 5002, and SB 5034 all expand/increase the current program. SB 5127 would eliminate the state’s portion of the property tax and SB 5108 would limit access to private property for governmental purposes. HB 1095 limits the impact on small forest landowners caused by last year’s road maintenance & abandonment requirements, while HB 1075 is the Washington Forest Protection Association’s attempt to clarify 2001 statutory changes made to forest tax statutes last session. SB 5109 relates to penalties assessed when farm and agricultural land is removed from open space classification and amends RCW 84.34.108. Two pieces of legislation introduced deal with conservation futures. SB 5113 allows counties to increase funding for properties acquired through conservation futures and SB 5140 allows additional uses for revenues collected under the county conservation futures levy. Some of the new legislation would adopt various studies done over the summer. SB 5041 would implement the marina rent survey and changes the calculation for marine use of public land. SB 5056 & SB 5057 declare the legislative intent to adopt the Tax Structure Study Recommendation and SJR 8200 would amend the State Constitution to allow for an income tax. SJR 8201 would amend the Constitution to provide for a revenue stabilization fund (rainy day fund) also recommended by the Tax Structure Committee.

Some legislation that was unsuccessful last year has returned. Those include; SB 5072 that would allow for a simple majority vote for school district levies, with SJR 8202 being the Constitutional amendment and SB 5082 to reduce property values by amounts spent on certain fees, with SJR 8204 being the Constitutional amendment. Three bills deal with property tax collection and they are HB 1023 modifying interest and penalties on delinquent property taxes, HB 1073 modifying the collection of property taxes on exempt land subleased for residential and recreational purposes and HB 1069 which would authorize additional waivers on interest and penalties for delinquent property taxes.

County Treasurers

Two bills have been introduced regarding interest and penalties on delinquent property taxes. Both measures will be heard by the House Finance Committee on Friday, January 24, at 1:30 p.m. HB 1023, modifies interest and penalties, and HB 1069 authorizes additional waivers on interest and penalties. The Treasurers’ Association cleanup bill has been drafted and sponsors are being secured. We will let you know when it is assigned a number. The bill will be introduced in the House. HB 1073, modifying the collection of property taxes on land subleased for residential and recreational purposes, is the bill being proposed to fix the Mason County dilemma created by the legislation last year regarding properties at Lake Cushman.

Changes Proposed to Ag Water Supply Financial Assistance Program

The Water Resources Program is proposing to make several changes to the existing state Agricultural Water Supply Facilities rule, Chapter 173-170 WAC. Under this voluntary program, Ecology provides grants and loans to public irrigation districts to help them repair or improve existing agricultural water conveyance facilities such as ditches, pipes and other irrigation systems. The proposed amendments would provide additional flexibility for making efficient and timely use of the remaining funds. The public comment period begins on January 15. Three public hearings will be held on the proposed amendments on February 4 in Yakima, February 5 in Moses Lake, and February 6 in Wenatchee.

Senate Plans for Quick Action on Water Legislation

Senator Jim Honeyford (R-Yakima County) is chairing a Subcommittee of the Senate Natural Resources, Energy and Water Committee that will meet three times during the week of January 20. The Subcommittee plans to hear at least 11 water resources bills during the week and move some of them on Friday to the full committee for action.

The bills address watershed planning, municipal water rights, groundwater withdrawals and the impacts of water quality on water withdrawals. The Governor plans to introduce a number of pieces of water-related legislation, too, but none are scheduled for hearing yet. The House is taking a slower pace and has not yet scheduled any water-related bills for public hearing.

New Water Quality Standards Proposed

The Department of Ecology has filed a major revision to the water quality standards rule initiating the formal rulemaking process. The public comment period will run through March 7, 2003.

This is the first major change to the federally required water quality standards in 10 years. Key changes include revised temperature standards to better protect fish, more clarity on how antidegradation provisions in the current standards should be implemented, changes to bacteria standards to better protect public health and reformattting the standards to allow for more tailoring of the standards in the future. Materials on these changes can be found at: http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/wq/swqs/index.html

The bill also states that the county auditor may retain up to five percent of the funds collected for administration. The money generated by this surcharge is to be transmitted monthly to the state treasurer who will deposit the funds into the mortgage lending fraud prosecution account to provide funds to deter, investigate and prosecute real estate fraud crimes. This bill is scheduled for a hearing on Wednesday, January 22 at 1:30 p.m. in the House Financial Institutions & Insurance Committee. Companion bill, SB 5118 was introduced this week as well. This bill is reminiscent of last year’s recording fee increase of $10 for low-income housing, with the five percent retained by the county auditor for administration.

Elections, Recording & Licensing

Licensing
A hearing is scheduled for Wednesday, January 22 at 3:30 p.m. in the House Transportation Committee to take public testimony on HB 1036 which declares that subagents have the same authority to mail out registrations and replacement plates to internet payment option customers as the agents (county auditors) until directed otherwise by legislative authority.

Recording
HB 1081 was introduced this week and creates a surcharge of two dollars to be charged by the county auditor at the time of recording of each residential first mortgage deed of trust, which will be in addition to any other charge authorized by law. The bill also states that the county auditor has the same authority to mail internet payment option customers as the agents (county auditors) until directed otherwise by legislative authority.

County Officials, Tribal Leaders Meet On Criminal Justice Issues
More than 200 people showed up last week for the first-ever Tribal/County Criminal Justice Summit at the Skagit Resort in Bow, Washington. Participants at the three-day conference focused on building relationships between individuals and institutions, with the long-term goal of improving public safety for all residents of Washington State.

Attorney General Christine Gregoire, the convener of the summit and a keynote speaker, said the summit would lay the foundation for making law enforcement in Washington State a national model for interagency cooperation and collaboration. Federal, state, county and tribal governments were all well-represented at the meeting, including numerous county sheriffs, prosecutors, and commissioners/councilmembers.

Following the organizational model of the recently successful “Methamphetamines Summits,” the tribal/county meeting began with a day of basic education. Participants learned about the history of native coastal peoples and the evolution of their justice systems, the history and functions of county government, and the many different and often conflicting federal approaches to Indian self-determination. Speakers also tried to clarify the difficult issues of jurisdiction, the federal tort claims act and liability.

The second day began with presentations of successful law-and-justice agreements between Snohomish County and the Tulalip Tribes and Skagit County and the Swinomish Tribe. Both agreements have helped their respective parties iron out questions of jurisdiction and development successful law enforcement partnerships, including cross-deputation of county and tribal officers. Under these agreements, tribal officers are designated as county deputies and have authority over non-tribal members on reservations. Snohomish County Sheriff Rick Bart and former Skagit County Sheriff Ed Goodman said this helps improve public safety for all residents throughout the county.

Participants then spent most of the remaining time in facilitated break-out groups identifying problems in their local areas, barriers to solving those problems, and next steps for progress. The hope is that the groups will continue their work back home, and then perhaps reconvene for a follow-up summit next year. Conference organizers are compiling notes from the groups and will distribute them to all participants in the next few months.

Elections Issues
The House State Government Committee, chaired by Representative Haigh, is meeting Friday afternoon and the Secretary of State’s office will give an overview of the legislation they will be proposing this year. Kitsap County Auditor Karen Flynn, a co-chair of the Auditors’ Legislative Committee, will present the Auditors’ Legislative recommendations during the hearing as well. HB 1093, updating the primary ballot rotation law, has been introduced by Representative Hatfield. His language is similar to that of the bill the Auditors’ Association is proposing – no bill number yet – that would determine the order of candidates on ballots. Each county would determine, by lot, the order in which candidates’ names would appear on primary and sam... ple ballots, and RCW 29.30.040 (rotating names of candidates in the primary) would be repealed.

Representative Hatfield has also introduced HB 1094, extending mail balloting. It provides that except where a recount or litigation is pending, the county auditor shall have sufficient mail ballots ready to mail to voters of that county at least 20 days before a primary, general election or special election.

Senator Pam Roach, Chair of the Senate Governmental Operations and Elections Committee, has introduced SB 5046, penalizing any election official who knowingly makes false statements about the conduct of an election.

National Survey Shows Local Public Health Better Prepared to Handle Bioterrorism

In mid-December 2002, the National Association of Counties (NACo) in partnership with the National Association of County and City Health Officials (NACCHO) commissioned a telephone survey of 1,883 local public health agencies nationwide. The survey, conducted by National Research, Inc., resulted in 500 responses from 44 states. Although the respondents were broadly representative, these results may not be generalized to all local public health agencies.

The survey collected information to determine whether federal funding for Bioterrorism preparedness is meeting local needs. The results show that local public health agencies are better prepared today to respond to Bioterrorism and other public health threats and emergencies than they were a year ago. New federal funding has played a role in the progress over the last year to build capacities. However, while progress has been made, the survey shows that local public health agencies still have far to go.

Building readiness will take more years of work, supported by adequate resources. Without additional funding, the smallpox vaccination program threatens the gains in preparedness that has been made in the last year (as well as other public health programs). To plan for vaccinating public health and medical response teams, resources from other aspects of Bioterrorism preparedness, as well as routine public health work has been diverted. It is disappointing that the Federal Administration seems to expect state and local governments to foot the bill for this massive effort using existing Bioterrorism preparedness funds. The impact of this policy will be to halt in its tracks all of our public health work in preparing for any act of terrorism other than a smallpox outbreak.

Public Health’s ability to improve our readiness for an outbreak of anthrax or some other disease, such as botulism or plague, or an attack using a chemical agent such as sarin gas, will be compromised. Ironically, focusing our highly limited resources exclusively on smallpox vaccination also will prevent us from improving our disease surveillance systems, which are essential for identifying a smallpox outbreak as early as possible so that it can be contained quickly and loss of life can be minimized.

The survey also shows that it is critical that state and local public health agencies work together to build their preparedness. In Washington, there has been a strong local-state partnership in Bioterrorism preparedness work.

The survey reiterates the fact that it does not matter to the health of our communities or to the public health system whether an outbreak of disease is caused intentionally by a terrorist or whether it occurs naturally. Dealing with all outbreaks requires a public health workforce trained to detect and manage epidemics, systems that will alert those staff when unusual disease conditions first begin to occur, appropriate laboratory capacity, and strong communication and data management capabilities.

Clearly, local governments can and must do the job of preparing for Bioterrorism. Emergencies happen at the local level, where people live and work, not at the state or federal level. If a public health emergency occurs in a community, the local health department would be the first to detect and respond to public health emergencies.

Courthouse Ramblings

Former Walla Walla County Commissioner Ray Needham, known for helping hundreds of people through difficult times, and for lending a hand to the less fortunate, died Monday evening at the age of 69.

Ray always had a deep interest in children, working and encouraging them as he coached the Pacific League for many years. He later started the football league. Along with Shelby Blevens he was instrumental in founding The Big Blue Booster. He served as PTA President for a number of years and also served on the Walla Walla School Board from 1977 to 1984.

Ray was much loved at the Senior Center where he volunteered for many years. Many senior citizens said he looked after them as though he was looking after his own grandparents.

He served as County Commissioner of Walla Walla County from 1984 to 1992. Ray always enjoyed and looked forward to the annual western district Crab Feed. One of Ray’s good friends on the “west side” of the state was Mike Murphy. After Ray retired from the County Commission he would always ask Dave (Carey) when he returned from Olympia, “how is my good friend Mike Murphy?”

Walla Walla County has lost a good friend and a fierce advocate. He will be greatly missed.

For those who may be interested, a scholarship fund has been set up at the Herring Funeral Home, 315 W. Alder, Walla Walla, WA 99362. The Ray Needham Scholarship Fund will benefit a Wa-Hi student.
Interest to all…
SB 1129 has been introduced and allows use of public facilities by elected officials for the preparation or delivery of written or verbal communications initiated by them consisting of information on the impact of any ballot propositions that foreseeably may affect a matter that falls within their constitutional or statutory responsibilities.

How about some good news?
If you’re tired of reading bad news about shrinking funding sources and our state’s soft labor market, I encourage you to find a way to participate in From the Heart of Washington, a campaign that could benefit our economy, our labor market, our farmers and you.

From the Heart of Washington encourages citizens to buy Washington food and agricultural products. Since the program was launched in June, there have been many opportunities for positive news coverage. It has been featured at county fairs; Safeco Field; farmers’ markets, grocery stores and in television, radio and print advertisements.

But, it’s a lot more than a jazzy ad campaign. The value of promoting agriculture can be measured in terms of jobs and production. Washington agriculture is worth $28 billion, or about 12 percent of the state’s economy, and it employs nearly 179,000 people.

From the Heart of Washington is way to thank our food and agricultural producers for their contributions to our state, and increase awareness of the tremendous variety and quality of Washington-grown products. By increasing sales of Washington products we are supporting jobs and generating money for our economy.

Participation is fun. Best of all, research indicates it gives citizens what they want. A June survey of 600 grocery shoppers revealed that three quarters of consumers feel it is important to know where the food they buy comes from. Nearly all say they are buying foods grown or produced in this state. And, eight in 10 say they are very likely to buy Washington-grown or produced foods in the future.

Your participation in From the Heart of Washington could be as simple as asking for and buying Washington-grown products where you shop, or as complex as sponsoring an event to showcase agriculture in your community. Funding for the campaign comes from a federal grant the state department of Agriculture received to support state agricultural programs.

For more information, visit the From the Heart of Washington Web site at http://www.heartofwashington.com/. Better yet, earn some positive media coverage. Call Shannon Hitchcock, program director at (866) 376-6469 and ask how you can sponsor an event in your community.

What about retirement?
Whether in a second term or third week in office, every county official should be asking themselves if they are doing what is best for their retirement.

Questions came to WACO recently regarding elected officials who did not join the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) during their first term (thank you to Island County Assessor Tom Baenen!) and that question prompted this alert to county officials. Elected officials are the only county employees who can elect to “opt in” to the Public Employees Retirement System or not. The good news is that the Department of Retirement Systems (DRS) has a convenient and comprehensive Web site to answer all your retirement questions whether you are a PERS member or not, a new official or a veteran, at http://www.wa.gov/drs/member/electedofficial/. There is even a special page dedicated to information for elected officials. It answers such frequently asked questions as:

Who is eligible?
When can I apply for membership?
How much will I contribute?
What is the monthly compensation?
What if I don’t apply during my first term of office?
Is my membership decision final?
May I retire and retain my elected position?
What if I am a retired PERS Plan 2 or 3 member when elected?
What is my employer’s obligation if I join late?

We strongly urge county officials to learn all they can about their retirement options/benefits. If http://www.wa.gov/drs/member/electedoffi
Economic Development Leadership Training
The Washington Economic Development Association (WEDA) is offering an Economic Development Leadership Training for newly elected officials, board members, and community stakeholders. WEDA has scheduled this highly-recommended training for Wednesday February 12, 2003 in conjunction with the WSAC Legislative Rally the following day.

The Economic Development Leadership Training will take place at the Governor’s House Ramada Inn. Participants will:

- Learn how to provide leadership in their community that makes for a strong economy.
- Comprehend basic principles and strategies of economic development.
- Network with colleagues from throughout the state.
- Understand how the current economy will affect community strategies.

Guest speakers include Martha Choe, Director of the Washington State Office of Trade & Economic Development; Gary Smith, Economist, Washington State University; Maury Forman, Trainer, Washington State Office of Trade & Economic Development.

Cost is $60 for members and $75 for non-members. Registration includes lunch and a copy of “Learning to Lead: A Primer on Economic Development Strategies”. New members of WEDA get a discount. Register by calling WEDA at 509-777-0525. Additional information on this training can be found on the WEDA website at www.wedaonline.org

STATE OF WASHINGTON: Employment Security Department/Assistant Commissioner, Administrative Services ESS170 - The Washington State Employment Security Department (ESD) seeking an energetic, dynamic and innovative leader for Assistant Commissioner, Administrative Services. The Assistant Commissioner leads and directs a wide variety of core infrastructure functions in support of the agency’s mission and vision. Applicants are encouraged to learn more about the Employment Security Department by visiting the ESD website at www.wa.gov/esd/.

Overview: ESD is the state's largest employment agency, matching a person with a job every 90 seconds of every business day. Last year, ESD assisted nearly a quarter of a million unemployed people in Washington State by providing payments while they looked for new work. ESD has approximately 2,700 employees and an operating budget of $258 million annually. ESD also administers the $1.4 billion unemployment insurance trust fund. Role: The Assistant Commissioner reports directly to the Commissioner and is responsible for directing core infrastructure and administrative functions provided by the Administrative Services Division, which employs approximately 130 staff and has an annual budget of $7.7 million.
